A "NAVAL" RECEPTION FOR INTERNATIONAL SPECIAL

Colonel Dean is now campaigning in India. In the Travancore District the public gatherings commenced with the "naval" reception at Marvellakara, which was something quite novel in the experience of our much-travelled visitor. The party travelled from Quilon by rail on our picturesque backwaters. While still a great way off from the landing stage, an Army Flag was observed to be fluttering in the breeze some little distance down the river, and sounds of joy were carried to our ears.

Gradually a little fleet of decorated boats drew near, and when they at last surrounded us glad-shouts of "Hallelujah!" and "Welcome!" rent the early morning.

The boats turned and escorted us to Marvellakara, the rowers in each boat keeping time, with their oars and voices, to the singing of a chosen leader, who balanced himself in the prow and directed operations.

A great crowd awaited us near the picturesque old Marvellakara Church for the party's landing. Many Corps were represented, each having its own banner of welcome, and when the long procession set off for the Divisional Headquarters the scene was indeed a gay one.

Those familiar with the fiery character of Colonel Dean will be surprised to find that his platform utterances were not so much as he would be affected by the restraints of tradition. Naturally, he did find it rather irksome, but the Lord helped him and his earnest messages got home to the hearts of his hearers. Large crowds came to the Mercy Seat, amongst them being many Syrian Christians.

BUDDHIST MONK IS CONVERTED IN JAIL—BRASS BAND STARTED AT COLOMBO

Staff-Captain Fernando (Ceylon) reports the conversion of a Buddhist monk in jail. He was imprisoned for attempting the life of a Government official who interfered with his plans for building a temple on certain Government property. He is now willing to be enrolled as a Soldier; he reads his Bible and knows his prayer.

Colombo boasts a Brass Band. True, only five instruments, but they are the means of drawing the people to hear about Jesus. Ensign Veera Rao, who has organized the Band, also reports the Salvation of a drunkard, whose testimony is listened to with surprise by all who knew him.

A soul-saving Awakening is in progress at Ambarawa, where recently thirty new Soldiers were sworn in. The ceremony was held at night, and seven boys and six Army Staff.

How Goes The Army?

A PASSING SURVEY OF SOME OF OUR WORLD-WIDE BATTLEFIELDS, AND OF MANY THRILLING VICTORIES WON FOR GOD

THE invitation to come to Christ is being proclaimed by Salvation Army Officers in some sixty countries and colonies, in nearly forty different languages.

Commissioner McLaughlin, under whose purview as an International Secretary, come a number of such Territories, give the following interesting review of The Army's operations in the course of an interview with an Editorial representative:

Advancing in China

"In addition to having opened up during the past twelve months new sections of the many Territories over which The Salvation Army Flag flies," said the Commissioner,

"we have commenced work in China, and there the outlook is very hopeful indeed. Although we had not expected the pioneer Officers for the moment to do anything in the nature of public work, the pressure put upon them has been so great and the desire of the people to be introduced to the Gospel has been so great that we have had to hold meetings in spite of the weather."

"Open-air services have also been begun. We teach the people to sing at these by the aid of large call sheets on which the words are written, and the people have been found for them. An outstanding feature about these meetings is the quickness with which the children get hold of the messages. In fact, the district of Peking the boys and girls can be heard singing Salvation Army songs in their homes and at their play."

"Every mail brings us assurances that The Salvation Army has arrived at just the right moment, and that our methods will be very successful in bringing the Chinese to God."

Javanese Troops Converted

"Turning to Java," continued the Commissioner, handling a pile of paper, "most remarkable results are being achieved. The conversion of them raw heathen — are being brought to God in scores and hundreds."

"The military men," went on the Commissioner, "are much interested in our work, and God is greatly blessing our efforts amongst them. In no country do two hundred native soldiers, all but one have been converted!"

"The same can be said of our work in Celebes, where large numbers of people are coming to God. There are opportunities there are unsurpassed anywhere!"

Japan Is Marvellous

"Japan!" The Commissioner became thoughtful as if to gain a true perspective before speaking, and then proceeded, his eyes sparkling as he did so. "Japan is marvellous."

A soul-saving Awakening is in progress at Ambarawa, where recently thirty new Soldiers were sworn in. The ceremony was held at night, and seven boys and six Army Staff.

The most wonderful thing about that country is that it is developing within its own borders. There are only a few European Officers in the whole of Japan; all the others are Japanese, in addition to which there are there are between forty and fifty Cadets in Training. Colonel and Mrs. de Groot have been most cordially received by all classes.

"In Japan, too, we are opening a Sanatorium; and we have under consideration the erection of a Headquarters, which shall be worthy of the Army in that land, as well as a considerable number of Halls for Corps' purposes. We are, in fact, considering extensions all the time!"

The President's Gift

"Then to speak of South America is to speak of another very wide field of opportunity and promise, and considerable vitality is being shown by our forces there. Recently in Chile, where the Government has introduced Lieut-Colonel Bonnet, the Provincial Officer, to the President of the Republic, and told him that the Salvation Army had been the means of saving her drunken son. The President thereupon said he would give The Army a piece of land on which to erect a Drunkards' Home!"

The Harvest Is Great

"Splendid soul-saving advances are being made in India. In one village recently nineteen heathen came over to The Army in one meeting, and it is probable that the whole community of four hundred souls will follow their example. The people of another village waited fifteen years for Christians to visit them, and after they had waited twelve years and no one came, they built themselves a temple in which to worship. A Cadet recently went there and held a meeting, and when the invitation was given for them to decide for Christ, ninety-six men and women responded, and the meeting was kept going until midnight!"

"It has been decided that five hundred of the mud and wattle buildings used as Salvation Army Halls in the villages are to be replaced by erections of brick and slate. Every year much damage is done to the existing Halls during the rainy seasons, and not a few of them have utterly collapsed. The General has issued an order for the early erection of the first fifty!"

"Yes, Hallelujah! the heathen are coming to God. But how many more could be won had we the Officers available! From many quarters the cry reaches us, 'Come and help us! Send us some one to tell us of Jesus!' They want to leave their heathendom and idolatry; who will show them how? The harvest truly is great; was never greater — but the labourers are few!"

A soul-saving Awakening is in progress at Ambarawa, where recently thirty new Soldiers were sworn in. The ceremony was held at night, and seven boys and six Army Staff.

JAPAN

COLONEL AND MRS. DE GROOT ARE WELCOMED

Attended Official Reception at Prince Minister's House in Honour of the Emperor's Birthday.

Colonel and Mrs. de Groot, who arrived at Kobe (Japan) on October 1st, were greeted by a large number of Soldiers at eight places on the way to Tokyo, and in Eugene man, were presented with beautiful bouquets of flowers.

On reaching the capital they heard the familiar strains of Salvation Army Band music, and gathered at the station was a large crowd of Officers, Cadets, Bands, Soldiers, and Life-Saving Scouts. The latter formed a guard of honour and the bugler sounded the Grand Salute. Major Yahoki (First Secretary) welcomed the new arrivals. A public meeting was held in the Hongo Tabernacle. The Hall was full to its capacity, and twenty-one men and women sought Salvation.

A few days after their arrival Colonel and Mrs. de Groot were welcomed to the Japanese Embassy by the British Prime Minister (Count Terauchi), who is also Foreign Minister, in which they were to a reception of his official residence in house of the Emperor's birthday.

The Dutch Ambassador introduced them to the Foreign Minister and his lady, and they were then in the room reserved for diplomats, and amongst others were introduced to the Home Minister, the Russian Ambassador, and his lady, the American Ambassador, and also to the Ambassadors of France, Sweden, and Switzerland.

The lady of the Russian Ambassador showed special interest in The Army, and spoke at length with the Colonel on our work in Russia and Finland.

The seventh Annual Young People's Day in Japan was held on the Emperor's birthday. Meetings were held by Colonel and Mrs. de Groot in the Baptist Tabernacle in the centre of Tokyo. Lieut-Colonel Yamamoto (Chief Secretary) said, "I am glad to see a gathering of a thousand Young People. Ninety-one of these sought Salvation, and ten volunteered for Officership."

INTERNATIONAL ITEMS

More Huts are in course of erection in France, under the direction of Lieut-Colonel Haines — three amongst English troops, and one each for Australian, Canadian, and coloured troops.

Nine soldiers were registered at a meeting at the Chain Tuffata Camp (Malta), led by Captain Bick of the Naval and Military Home.

"A few of us held meetings on the island of the Murene Islands," writes Comrade Arthur. "Sticker from a camp in India, and God has helped us to win nine souls."

Shadowgraphs

BY THE SHADOW

Shadow hears quite a lot about Primary Classes of late. Adjutant Ritchie, of the Temple, has just secured a room for his proposed New Year's address in this department.

Quite a lot of talk going on over plans laid out on a certain table. The Divisional Commander has his plans for the Winter Campaign all tabulated, so the Chief Secretary informed the Shadow.

Shadow hears that an excellent and perfect system of tabulating all enlistments — Soldiers, Bandmen, ex-Soldiers, or Adjutants — is in vogue at the Divisional Headquarters.

Shadow saw the Field Officer and Treasurer coming out from an interview with the Commissioner, Chief Secretary, and Financial Secretary, and on enquiring found that they had had a satisfactory reply concerning their new building.

The Field Secretary looks fagged. The Inspection class a lot of work upon him, and figure calculation is rather trying to some of his tribe.

Shadow hears that the Commissioner has been in consultation with Major Jennings concerning the ordering of Libraries suitable to all ranks, both small and great, and it is likely that your "Cry," Mr. Editor, will be enriched with prices for the same ranging in numbers from 25, 50, 75, up to 300 books.

About eighty Toronto Young People, Workers assembled in the Life-Saving, Scout, and Headquarters, the Young People's Secretary going carefully through the duties of such. Shadow heard remarks to the effect that it was most valuable. What about those who were not there?

Shadow hears that Adjutant Squadroneiro informed the Commissioner that he had transferred five Young People to the Senior Roll last week. Will done, Adjutant!

Mr. Editor, Shadow has an attack of cold chills throughout the whole of his to-day's report. He hears that you have received instructions to leave Canada and take up a great position in Australia. Can this be true? What will Shadow do without your encouragement?

How cold it has been lately. Shadow saw the Commissioner with something around his neck the other day, and found, on touching it, that it was for the first time in his life the Commissioner had worn anything of the kind. What does that mean, Mr. Editor? Old age creeping on?

There is no necessity, however, for any extra clothing in the Grand Trunk Railway coach as the party proceeds towards Montreal. They are going to more Young People's Day. This makes the fourth of the series. Expectations run high for a big thing.

My world! but the Shadow hears that the inspection at Montreal was very penetrating, and went back over three years.

Wonderful Young People's Day, beyond anything that the party expected; 102 through the Registration Room; ten Corps Cadets and seven Candidates!

Shadow was informed that at several Corps the Senior Sergeant-Major has been relieved of his duties and placed in charge of the Young People's Work. This is grand!

Shadow noticed the intense interest and enthusiasm of the Field Officers in the Young People's Day. These Officers evidently thoroughly believe in the Young People.

The Divisional Commander is meeting every Officer in his Division and sitting down with them, with his plans for the Winter Campaign all tabulated, so the Chief Secretary informed the Shadow.

How cold it has been lately. Shadow saw the Commissioner with something around his neck the other day, and found, on touching it, that it was for the first time in his life the Commissioner had worn anything of the kind. What does that mean? Why, a most interesting Young People's Meeting on Monday morning, based on: (1) for children under ten years; and (2) for those over ten.

The "Aids to the Directory" is a book which is one of the finest compendiums and assistants to all speakers. A certain clergyman declares that this book is one of the best assistants to his sermon-making. Why do all speakers not secure a copy?

Shadow was delighted to be informed of the above interesting item, and feels determined to secure one of these books to help in his imperfect utterances.

THE SALVATION ARMY — AS AN AUXILIARY TO THE BRITISH ARMY

[Moncton Daily Transcript] Everybody recognizes the good work which The Salvation Army is doing lately, but how many recognize the equally good work which The Salvation Army is doing, not merely the world round, but actually in the theatres of war. On more than one occasion while troops were passing through the city, headed by their bands, it was discovered that very many bandmen belonged to The Salvation Army. On several occasions, when the troops were passing down Church Street, the on-lookers would see bandmen suddenly salute the Officers standing in the Salvation Army Barracks.

The work done by The Salvation Army in the providing of ambulances is not confined to the British Army, but the foreign countries have been helped, and notably Russia, where the gifts of The Salvation Army were received with public acclaim and honoured by the inspection of the Czar personally. Many a Salvation Army Officer has, without frills, set aside claims to be a Chaplain and actually enlisted in the ranks as a private so that he could get into personal touch with the men. Story after story is told of the good work done by this Organization. It is beyond the power of the public confidence in The Salvation Army that its appeals for support are so successful.

It holds a unique position in the British Empire. Being allied to the Church, it occupies a friendly neutrality towards all. The Salvation Army is one of the most successful of the Christian religious organizations in Oriental countries. The reason for this is not far to seek. The Christians, when they went forth to convert, did not, by direct manner, and social habits stand aloof from the natives, but so far as possible, they tried to become like the natives, and adopted the habits and the customs of the natives.

On Friday, Jan. 5th, the Life-Saving Scouts and Guards of Orillia held a Social. The Chair was taken by Sergeant-Major Wadde, of Midland, who was in town with the 177th Battalion Band, and was supported by Brother Martin of Midland, also Brother Watson, both of the 177th. A huge drink was given by Brother Bristol and Patrol Leader Myers, also a solo on the Jew's harp, a song by the Guards, "Do You Biff," and two interesting ruses were items on the programme. The three bandmen gave the boys and girls some good advice — W. W.

of the natives. In this way they have won their confidence, and therefore it is not surprising to find that in the London "Times," no longer ago than Nov. 24th, we find in reference to the organization of cooie corps for the Persian Gulf expedition the following item:—

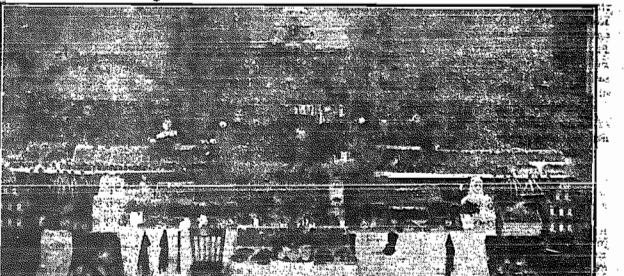

The military authorities have asked The Salvation Army in India to raise two porter corps for service in the Persian Gulf in loading and unloading ships. Each corps will be under the command of British Salvation Army Officers. Staff-Captain Harnett has been appointed Commandant of the first corps, and has received a commission as Second Lieutenant.

From the preceding it is evident that the field of useful activity by The Salvation Army is not restricted to a purely religious mission, but is marked by an extraordinary versatility of action.

The Sand Tray

Elsewhere will be found some interesting information concerning the Sand Tray and its uses. We heartily commend its careful perusal by Corps' Commanders and Young People's Workers; for we feel sure that it will prove a great stimulus to the use of the Sand Tray. It is so simple in practice that any one can use it, and so wonderfully effective that we feel sure those workers who start to use it will continue to do so. It has been aptly said by the interviewer that through eye-gate runs the highway to the mind. There is no doubt about that; it is also a short-cut to the understanding. Any one can read a picture, and all normal children can understand the object-lessons of the Sand Tray and the blackboard. We think the Sand Tray need not necessarily be of large dimensions, but can be made to suit all conditions. The Sand Tray affords splendid opportunities for any one with an inventive turn of mind to impart lasting instruction to the young. We hope to see it much more frequently used than at present.

FAREWELL OF LIEUT. COL. & MRS. BOND THE EDITOR LEAVES CAN- ADA FOR AUSTRALIA

On Friday, Jan. 12th, Commissioner Richards received a cable from the Chief of the Staff, informing him that The General had appointed Lieut.-Colonel Bond to succeed Lieut.-Colonel Friedrich, of the Editorial Department in Australia, and that an Editor for the Canadian Publications would, in due course, be appointed from London.

Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Bond, with their customary readiness to fall in line with God's will and The General's plans, promptly accepted the appointment, and, according to present arrangements, Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Bond will publicly farewell from Toronto at the Commissioner's Rhodes Avenue meetings, Greenwood Theatre, on Sunday, Feb. 4th, and will leave on Tuesday, Feb. 6th, for the coast; via Chicago, sailing from Vancouver on Wednesday, Feb. 14th, by the S.S. Niagara.

At the time of writing the name of Lieut.-Colonel Bond's successor has not been received.

Our deepest sympathy is extended to Captain Waldford, of Preston, who is receiving news that his dear brother has been killed in action.

Ensign Fagner has been transferred to the Canadian Army in Canada West and is appointed to the position of a form Captain Aldridge from Ottawa to St. John, and Lieutenant Miles is taking a day appointment.

The eight-day Salvation Campaign in the City of Winnipeg was successfully launched by Commissioner Sowton on Sunday, Jan. 7th. All who attended the various meetings, particularly the Salvationists, fully expected to experience seasons of spiritual refreshing, and few went away disappointed. Each of the services, as the Commissioner desired to call them, were indeed "Awakening Meetings."

In view of the fact that several prominent men were conducting special meetings at different theatres in the city, the attendance at the Citadel was very encouraging.

Brigadier and Mrs. Taylor and the Divisional and Territorial Staffs, together with the Territorial Salvation Singers, supported the Commissioner. The Band, Singers, and comrades of the Winnipeg I. Corps turned out well, and endeavored to uphold the hands of the Territorial staff meetings as far as laid in their power.

There was no denying the fact, the people were disappointed when the "awakening" failed.

The Commissioner divided the people present into three classes, and likened them to the three people whom Christ raised from the dead: the daughter of Jairus, the son of the widow of Nain, and Lazarus.

A spirit of deep conviction brooded over the congregation as the Brigadier arose to "draw in the net," and, after a long pull and a strong haul, the part of God's people, coupled with their prayers and faith, a number of men and women sought and found pardon. One of the men who came forward was attired in His Majesty's uniform.

The Commissioner continues with the Campaign till Jan. 10th, when he will close the part of God's people, coupled with their prayers and faith, a number of men and women sought and found pardon. One of the men who came forward was attired in His Majesty's uniform.

exercises. This very bright, interesting service was brought to a close after an address by the Commissioner, which was a strong appeal to the unaved to make their peace with God.

Jesus' "Have the Sinner Die!" sung to the tune of "Sovereignty," was the opening song of the concluding meeting of the day. The Citadel was crowded, and the congregation participated in the singing in a manner which convinced one that while they sang the deep truths contained in the words were having effect upon their hearts.

The appeals of both Mrs. Staff-Captain Peacock and Adjutant Fugmire were of character that could not but convince the unconverted of the power of the Blood to save and cleanse from sin. Both testified more emphatically to the saving and keeping power of God in their own lives.

The Commissioner's address tended to bring about an "awakening" in the hearts and souls of all: being a powerful exhortation to those indifferent to spiritual things that "awake." The Commissioner divided the people present into three classes, and likened them to the three people whom Christ raised from the dead: the daughter of Jairus, the son of the widow of Nain, and Lazarus.

Following this Campaign, the General met the Divisional Young People's Secretaries in Council at Clapton on Jan. 11th-12th.

The Annual Gathering was recently held at the Regina Domestic Lodge. A very enjoyable evening was spent. Adjutant and Mrs. Habkirk inform us that about thirty girls were entertained at supper.

Among the many Officers through-out the Territory who are in poor health are Adjutant Melkie, Captains Brown, Delamont, Nelson, and Todhunter. Pray for these dear comrades.

Ensign and Mrs. Wright, of Edmonton I, will farewell in the near future. These Officers are being transferred to Canada West.

Captain Hodge has been appointed (pro tem) to Antinimal, B.C.

We are glad to learn that the condition of Staff-Captain Sinn's knee continues to improve.

It is very encouraging to note that at the Annual Sunday School Rally held at New York City, the Cambridge Junior Corps won the Banner awarded for the largest attendance. All the Sunday Schools of the city took part in the competition for the Banner.

CANADA EAST

The Commissioner, accompanied by the Chief Secretary and Lieut.-Colonel Bond, visited St. Catharines on Thursday, Jan. 18th, for the purpose of conducting the "Have the Sinner Die!" Campaign. Comrades from Welland and Niagara Falls were also present.

On Tuesday the Commissioner gave a lecture to the Cadets on "The Right Spirit."

The Young People's Day to be conducted by the Commissioner at Hamilton on Jan. 21st, will be led by a Divisional Inspection on the Monday.

Mrs. Commissioner Richards, accompanied by Mrs. Colonel McMillan and Mrs. Linn, will be at the Annual Tea Meeting of the Toronto League of Women on Friday, Jan. 19th.

Colonel Gaskin, writing from Switzerland, says that he is having good, soul-saving times. At one meeting twenty-one souls were saved. He is forty-four years of age, and has been a prisoner of war for four years.

The "Home Fairy" meeting arranged by Brigadier Taylor, and presided over by the Commissioner, on Friday, Jan. 5th, was a decided success. A full report will be found in the "War Cry."

Major Hay, the energetic Divisional Commander of Alberta, is held a strenuous time of his life. He is at present with a swing at Tigerville, Vermilion, Mill Creek, LeDuc, etc., etc.

We regret that Major Dobney, the Women's Social Secretary, continues to be far from well.

THE scene was the Hall of the Montreal Metropole, the most comfortable and grand of the Young People from all the Corps in the City of Montreal, who were gathered to the Young People's Day. Candidates, Young People's Workers—in fact, every branch of the work was well represented. The ston's heart was represented in that crowd.

With the promptness of the sun in movements, the Commissioner, at 10.30 a.m., walked onto the platform amid a reception from four hundred clapping hands, and half as many cheering voices.

The Chief Secretary then announced the opening song, after which Brigadier and Mrs. Morris gave the possession of the Fruits of the Spirit. Converted in a small town in the backwoods, she felt the Spirit of God calling her for Officership; hence, she had been called to the Lord still calling for something greater from her. She secured permission to go to the front and work amongst the deep-dyed sinners, and still she felt there was something more that God desired of her. She offered her life for Jesus, journeyed thither, and for a time worked hard in a little town. Still, she felt she was not in her right place, for she felt she had not enough to endure or sacrifices to make, so finally went right into the hills. While working here, she secured a score of souls, with unselfish devotion she nursed the sick and dying and buried the dead, until at last she was stricken with the dread disease of the heart. When she thought of home and loved ones, and still felt that she had done her duty; and so, having no one to meet him in the realms above.

The Chief Secretary then went on to say that, while God was perhaps not so merciful to the young, yet he understood every one's hardships, sacrifices, yet in each individual sphere we could just as much exemplify the bearing of the Fruits of the Spirit as had done the little Australian Captain.

The final session at last came. Throughout the day the attention of the Young People was very marked, the expectant, deeply-rooted attention of the night session, by the voice of the Chief Secretary, in that fiery, energetic manner of his, poured out his soul to God, and, after that, until the prayer meeting, not a sound was to be heard, save in the voice of the Commissioner. No picture was more skillfully painted by the Chief Secretary, than the word-picture which the Commissioner brought before all, of the face of Christ.

After the prayer meeting commenced, and then it was that the value of the Commissioner's work was proven, for, through his words, the hearts, as the constant, steady stream of Young People coming to the Penitent Form proved. No rush or emotion was evident, but a cool, calculated determination was very evident. Tears—yes, many tears—were shed, not of the emotional kind, however, but of a real, sincere character, which is the mark of earnestness to live a life of service for God.

By eight o'clock over fifty Young People had knelt at the Mercy Seat; but still they came; here a splendid-looking young Bandman, now a Patrol Leader of the Guards, a soldier, retired from military service, on, on, on, until at last all swell the chorus, "Victory for Me!" when the hundred and second soul obtained the Penitent Form.

It was very fitting that representative comrades should give their views on the day's meetings, and Brigadier McMillan, Adjutant Calver, Captains Pace, Balfour, Atkinson, Young People's Sergeant-Major Collyer, and the Life-Saving Scout and Grand Leaders of Montreal I, and II, respectively, each expressed their personal appreciation and that of the Young People, and the work and much thought which the Commissioner had put in, along with other comrades, for the success of the day's meetings. The latter told of the many blessings received throughout the day, and of their firm conviction that it was but a "beginning of good things" for the Young People of Montreal.

The general Divisional Commander, on his own and every one's behalf, expressed his appreciation and thanks to the Commissioner, and in terms exceedingly warm, thanked the Commissioner for his having found time to come to Montreal, for the wonderful time with God they had had, and gave him a hearty welcome to come again next year for another just such a day.

The most interesting of cheering and clapping which followed his remarks can only be termed as a "volcanic eruption" in its exuberance.

After the singing of the "Doxology" the Montreal Young People's Day, so far as the meetings were concerned, was a thing of the past, and the Commissioner can venture to speak of it, so far as the future is concerned.

Throughout the day the Commissioner was very ably assisted by the Chief Secretary, Brigadiers Morris, Bettridge, and McMillan; Mrs. Macmillan, and the various "Officers of the Corps" and other Officers of the Montreal District. Must be rendered throughout the day by the Commissioner, and the Chief Secretary, and the leadership of Bandmaster Alex. McMillan.

SOLDIERS' MEETING AT HAMILTON

The second of the Commissioner's United Soldiers' Meetings was held in the Hamilton I, Citadel on Thursday, Jan. 18th. The hall was practically filled with Soldiers from Hamilton I, II, and III, and Dundas Corps; and the Commissioner was once more received to the "Ambitions City."

The Chief Secretary was in charge of the evening exercises, and, in his usual cheerful, energetic manner, ably piloted the same; also giving a few words of exhortation. The Commissioner gathered comrades of the wonderful privilege that was theirs, in having the Commissioner with them.

Brigadier and Mrs. Taylor, the Commissioner, and the comrades took up the chorus, "I'll Follow Thee," left no doubt in any of the visitors' minds that at a blessed time was to follow.

The Commissioner, in his usual brisk, business-like manner, gave a few words of exhortation, and the comrades of the Citadel on (Page 12)

Is the Slogan of the Campaign Now Starting

Hopes are High for Great Results

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

Seventy-five at the Cross—Sergeant Major and Wife Promoted.

Lieut. Colonel and Mrs. Chandler conducted, on Dec. 30th-31st, the first meetings of a 4-day revival campaign at Hamilton. A lack of God's Spirit was felt, and the comrades drank in the burning words uttered by the Divisional Commander and Mrs. Chandler. A memorial service was held at night for Brother Holmes and Brother Whitmore and at the close sixteen souls sought God.

The week-night meetings commenced at the usual hour, with the presence of a large number of people in prayer. Special address were given every night by Adjutant, Major Burton and one Local Officer. During the week-night meetings the comrades consecrated themselves to God—making a total of seventy-five for the Campaign.

A noticeable feature of the Campaign was the hearty singing. A spontaneous prayer and testimony. At the last meeting, Sergeant Major and Mrs. Whitmore were appointed, with the rank of Cadet, to lead the prayer and testimony.

ENSIGN AND MRS. BEST

Week Meetings—Young People's Work Advances.

On Sunday, Jan. 7th, the meetings at St. John 1st were conducted by Ensign and Mrs. Best. In the afternoon, the comrades met for a great gathering when the Ensign spoke at length. At the close of our meeting, the Ensign spoke to the children, his address being full of interest.

Although the weather was very cold, a large crowd came to the meetings. Mrs. Best favoured us with a solo. The Ensign spoke on the character of Zacharias. Now we are looking forward under the leadership of Captain Boulton to do more for the extension of God's Kingdom.

FORTY-SEVEN NAMES

On Honour Roll—18 Bandmen

An Honour Roll was recently compiled at Vancouver 1st by Mrs. M. J. Leach. Brigadier and Mrs. Leach were in charge of the meeting, spoke in glowing terms of the comrades who have gone away, and the comrades who are still in the ranks. Also gave brief

The Young Jack and Salvation Army Band conducted the service at the unveiling the national anthem. The national anthem was sung by the forty-seven names on the Roll, and the number eighteen are Bandmen.

A BUSY TIME

Successful Sale of Work Put On

We had a busy time in the Evening Corps during December. We commenced our activities with a Sale of Work, which went off splendidly, the sisters proving themselves able sales-women! Tea and cake was also sold, and the sum of sixty dollars was cleared.

On Christmas Eve we went forth to gladness with our comrades—about twenty comrades in all. Some of them were armed with electric torches and the merrymen with their little lamps. We started from the Hall at the stroke of midnight, and arrived home at three o'clock in the morning, tired but happy. In spite of all this, the comrades turned up Christmas morning for the meeting, and God blessed our souls.

On the last day in the old year the comrades turned out in full force. Captain Delmont and her sister were visitors for the week-end, and did their part to make the day a success. The Watch-night Service was well attended, the testifying being clear and bright. God rewarded our efforts with four souls, and we ended up the day with a brisk march.

We are all praying that Captain Delmont may soon be fully restored to health, and to be enabled to lead the comrades in the Campaign, who at present is fighting alone.

SOULS GETTING SAVED

United Meetings Prove Times of Blessing.

On Saturday night at Halifax 1st, we had a short open-air, and then an inside meeting at which two souls sought pardon.

Sunday was a day spent in real earnest work for God. He came very near to us in the morning meeting, and the comrades came out for real consecration. This was led by Captain and Mrs. Laurie.

A real stirring, praise meeting, at which Adjutant Harris and others took part, was held in the afternoon. God gave us the victory at night and four souls sought pardon.

Monday a united meeting was held, at which the Officers and comrades of Dartmouth and Halifax 1st and 11 took part; also Mrs. Staff. Officers at this time were very sought and claimed pardon. God is making the united meetings a great blessing.

We thank God for sending to our Corps two Officers like Captain and Mrs. Laurie. They are real workers for God and His Kingdom.—T. D.

BORRY TO LOSE HIM

On Jan. 7th, at Kitchener, we said good-bye to another of our comrades. Brother A. Vale—who was known to all—was going overseas. We were very sorry to lose him, and our comrades pray for him. He is a fine man and a true friend.

CHANCELLOR VISITS

Makes a Surprise Call—Successful Time.

Chatham (Ont.) was surprised to see Staff-Captain White and Lieutenant-Webster arrive on Saturday last, just when the open-air was about to finish. It was a welcome surprise. We had a good meeting inside on Saturday night, and in spite of the cold weather, the Band turned out and played their instruments.

The Holmes meeting was one of the very best. One comrade came out for consecration. The Staff-Captain took no time, but went and conducted the fall services and Lieutenant-Webster conducted the open-air.

Sunday night, inside, Lieutenant-Webster gave us a splendid address, and Staff-Captain White then took over the rest of the service, which resulted in two men seeking pardon.

The Band, in spite of calliments, are playing the latest journals and are playing well. The Bandmaster (Brother O. Dinkley), who has come back with us again from Windsor.

CORPS SUCCEEDING

Visit from Divisional Commander and Chancellor.

We are having good times in Shelbourn (Ont.). During the past few weeks God has been working in our midst and saving souls.

The Watch-night Service will be long remembered in the hearts and minds of the comrades of the Shelbourn Corps. We had the joy of seeing nine of the comrades kneeling at the Mercy altar, desiring to reconsecrate themselves, and to God for the coming year.

On Jan. 8th-9th we were favoured with a visit from our Divisional Commander (Major Crichton), also the Chancellor (Staff Captain White). Although their visit came at a busy time, they were inspired to press on and aim at higher and greater things. We also were able to rejoice over seeing a hickslider return to the fold.

Everything is going well in the Corps, under the leadership of Lieutenant-Webster, assisted by Cadet Richardson. We are believing for greater things.

MAJOR AND MRS. CRICHTON

Pay Visit—Five Souls Seek God

We were favoured at Kentville with a visit from our Divisional Commander (Major and Mrs. Crichton). The Divisional Commander, who is a very interesting man, spent some time with us, and was very enjoyed by all present. Then Staff-Captain Byers read the lesson, and warned the people to flee from the wrath to come. Major Crichton then led the prayer meeting, and one soul seeking pardon.

BRIGADIER ADBY

Conducts Helpful Meetings at the Toronto Temple.

Brigadier Adby conducted the meetings at the Temple on Sunday, Jan. 14th. The Holmes meeting was a season of rich blessing, and all who attended went away with stronger desires for having been present.

In spite of the extreme cold wave, a good number gathered in the afternoon. There were many who expressed gratitude to God for His goodness; a few Bandmen.

The Brigade gave a practical helpful address, assuring all present that God was able to make the most useless and barren life full of energy and usefulness, and to blossom forth and bear fruit for the honour and glory of God.

At night, with the channels that brought much blessing was the congregational singing. The Band and Singers took part, and the Divisional Commander gave a stirring appeal, based on Eph. 2:10. "How long have ye between two opinions?" "Indecision would rob the life of its meaning, and the blessing of Salvation on earth," said the Brigadier. He told a touching story of how the song "The Line that the Sweet Refrain" came into existence, and urged all present to obey conscience, seek God, and cease living a life of indecision.

The day was full of blessing, inspiration, and the counsel and instruction given; if heeded, it will bear fruit to the glory of God. It was regretted that Mrs. Adby was unable to be present, owing to an attack of tonsillitis.

ADJUTANT LARSEN

Conducts Special Meetings—Six Souls Forward.

Selkirk has recently been favoured with some very interesting and profitable sessions. Adjutant Hardy, who has fought many a battle, Selkirk conducted the service on Sunday, Dec. 24th. The meetings were much blessed.

On Christmas night, our Young People's Entertainment proved a splendid success. Dr. Gibbs, with his usual Army spirit, proved an able Chairman.

God continued with us on New Year's Eve, and the previous souls started on the "new and living way." A large number attended the Watch-night Service. We were all united in prayer, and the Rev. Mr. Honnor at this service.

Adjutant Larsen led our meetings on Sunday, Jan. 7th. Lively times were experienced, which was much enjoyed by all present. Then Staff-Captain Byers read the lesson, and warned the people to flee from the wrath to come. Major Crichton then led the prayer meeting, and one soul seeking pardon.

HOPEFUL FOR THE FUTURE

We are still on the up-grade at Lang Pond. Our Christmas Dinner was a success, the proceeds amounting to $100.00. The speakers are happy to be saving winter—Captain E. J. C. Carr.

Y. P. SECURITIES

Lead On—Was Cry Order Is Issued.

We had with us at Fairbank Corps on Dec. 30th-31st, the Young People's Secretary (Brigadier Bettbridge) and his talks were very inspiring and helpful. In the afternoon he had a special address to the children, and not without effect, for we had the joy of witnessing three children volunteer to the Mercy Seat. It was a time of rich blessing to all, and we felt that God was indeed very near.

At night the Brigadier held our attention and insisted that the cry of the meeting, and one man was deeply stirred, but did not yield. He came out last Sunday night and gave himself to God.

Our Christmas "Cry" sold easily. Sister Mrs. Lawrence, of Silverthorne, sold 125 copies. Her husband is overseas with His Majesty's forces.

Our Christmas carol-singing was a great success, if measuring from last year's return. It was a financial total, and not only so, but we were more heartily received by the people; one gentleman gave us two one-dollar bills, and it was no unusual thing for people to send us money out on the street as we were singing. Besides we were, after tea, invited in to have a cup of tea; the last stand we took for our Christmas singing a lady came out and invited us in to have a cup of tea, which we very gladly accepted, but to our mutual surprise it was a real Christmas feast, and she invited us to have a dollar.

We had a nice chat together in the home, sang a few of our songs, had a word of prayer, and came home with an invitation to the coming year. We have increased our "War Cry" order by twenty, and hope to make it up to one hundred before long.

MAJOR SOUTHALL

Conducts Inspiring Meetings—Thirteen Forward.

The week-end meetings conducted by Major Southall, who God never fails to send us a weekend of Jan. 4th-5th was of a different character again, inasmuch that each meeting was a success. On Saturday night Adjutant Layman spoke, and we were richly blessed. Sunday morning Captain A. Ashby took the lead, and the comrades promised we had made to God at the New Year season, and three sought a deeper work of grace. In the afternoon, the comrades were pleased to see and hear his visit.

His Saturday evening address was splendid indeed, and prepared the way for the Sunday morning. The Holmes meeting address was possibly the most helpful and great expressions of love and help were forthcoming from many who attended.

The afternoon and night meetings were really a feast of fat things, and the Watch-night Service was beautiful indeed in every respect. Though the Major had to catch the midnight train, he was on his way on with the meeting and thirteen handed at the Mercy Seat, and many more were helped and inspired.

Although it has been said by all that it was one of the best week-end services we have had in our three and a half years' stay at Fairbank, the Major was on his way to talk to the Sunday School children, and see one of the Outposts at the main mission in extending the Major's hearty invitation back again.

A MUNITION CENTRE

Bombarded—Local Ministers Welcome Salvation Army.

On Sunday, Jan. 7th, The Salvation Army made its first appearance at Trenton, N.S. This town is the centre of the manufacturing of munitions; it being the home of the Nova Scotia Ship Company, and at the present time is in the very heart of the "Busy East" and, with its great it would be a time of rich blessing and the great demand for shells, it has also increased the necessity for Christian workers. There is no doubt but what The Salvation Army will make good at Trenton.

On the above-mentioned date the "attack" on Trenton was made. In the afternoon Ensign Brockport, Lieutenant Thornhill, and Sister Baker, of New Glasgow, took their stand on one of the street corners, and for the first time in the history of the town, an Army open-air meeting was conducted.

At the Temple Hall there was a full house waiting for the first shot to be fired, as it had been announced. Ensign Brockport explained the situation, and introduced Lieutenant Thornhill as the Officer in charge for the time being. Between the meeting the young son of Brother and Sister Harris was dedicated to God.

The Temperance Hall, for the night, was packed, and every bit of standing room and sitting room was occupied, to say nothing of the large crowd around the door. The Rev. Mr. McLeod and Rev. Mr. McLeod, representing the Presbyterian and Methodist bodies, were present, and the words of welcome were spoken with no uncertain sound. They looked upon the advent of The Salvation Army as a great blessing to the community. Ensign Brockport spoke with much liberty, taking for his text John 3:16. There was a conviction expressed, the prospects are bright for a lively Corps of The Salvation Army at Trenton—"One of the Three Attackers."

SPECIAL SPEAKERS

London 1st is still working under great difficulties, yet God never fails to send us a weekend of Jan. 4th-5th was of a different character again, inasmuch that each meeting was a success. On Saturday night Adjutant Layman spoke, and we were richly blessed. Sunday morning Captain A. Ashby took the lead, and the comrades promised we had made to God at the New Year season, and three sought a deeper work of grace. #### OFFICERS FARWELL

A Good Start—Seven Forward

We have said good-bye to Captain and Mrs. Barclay, at Amherst, N.S., much to our regret, and have welcomed Ensign and Mrs. White. We could hardly reconcile ourselves to their leaving, but they have to return to God.

SPIRITUAL PROGRESS

Divisional Commander Pays Visit

We have had a visit at Edmonton 11, from Major Hay and Captain Dwyer, with every one appreciated and much conviction was felt. We also had a visit from Sister Mrs. Mosley of Red Deer, who spoke to the comrades. In the afternoon meeting the Juniors listened to an interesting talk on Heaven and what it would be like. After a well-attended meeting, a man surrendered to God.

On the Tuesday night following, to begin our Lenten campaign, a young girl who had hesitated for a long time, came to the Fountain.

On Sunday we had good meetings, with a good Sunday School attendance, which is growing larger every Sunday. In the night service, when the comrades were singing, a young man was dedicated to God.

MANY SOULS

Seek God at Newly-Opened Corps

On Jan. 6th-7th Major Crichton and Staff-Captain Byers visited the new Corps of Bridgewater. Their lantern lecture, "A Tour Round the World," was appreciated by the comrades. At the close of the service two young women volunteered to serve the Master. A number of souls were accomplished in their hearts.

Sunday morning the Chancellor gave an address on "The Great Loss of the Evening Gown," and in the afternoon, "The Woman at the Well." The Divisional Commander addressed the evening service, and expressed the hope that all would persevere. At the close of a well-fought prayer meeting five souls sought the Saviour.

The converts turned out to the Monday night meeting conducted by the Commanding Officers. Each testified to the work done within their hearts. A young woman chose Christ as her Master at the close.

A GOOD SPIRIT

Prevails, and Souls Being Saved

The good work still goes on at St. John 1st. On a recent Sunday Ensign and Mrs. Best led the meetings. On Christmas Entertainment a decided success. A splendid group, a good programme, and a substantial income was made. The service was well attended, and two souls sought at the Cross.

Our little Band looks decidedly smart in their new uniforms, and is coming on nicely.

We had a good day on Jan. 7th. A good spirit prevailed throughout the day, and at the night meeting one brother sought the Saviour. We were glad to have a comrade, Treasurer Barnes, who has been ill for some time. We also welcomed back Brother and Mrs. Barclay, who have been on a visit to Newfoundland. Our motto is "Victory!"

TRAINING NOTES

By F. and O.

We have at last settled down to normal after the Christmas rush and the New Year holidays. In other words, we are "running on schedule time."

THE MEMORY OF THE COMMISSIONER

His Watch-night Service Lingers with us yet.

Among the many instructive and inspiring addresses that the Commissioner has delivered at the School during the past week or so were: 1. "How to Conduct a Meeting"; 2. "Backsliders"; 3. "Reasons for Officership."

It is too bad, I believe both my friends "O" and myself omitted to mention the fact that Santa paid us a visit. Not one of us was forgotten by him.

The men Cadets each take an active part in the Young People of the Corps to which they are attached, when it is accompanied by a blizzard.

We have been privileged to be present at three of the Special Review meetings conducted by the Commissioner. It is rather strenuous, however, when it is accompanied by a blizzard.

Open-air work continues to be the order of the day, in spite of the low temperature (20 to 30 below zero). It is rather strenuous, however, when it is accompanied by a blizzard.

Surgery's Newest Wonders

AN OPERATION ON THE HEAD THAT MAKES FEEBLE-MINDED, CRIPPLED CHILDREN NORMAL

ONE of the most remarkable feats of very recent surgery is the transforming of feeble-minded, crippled children into relatively normal individuals by the seemingly anomalous procedure of cutting a hole in the skull of the defective individual.

In order to understand how such a thing is possible, it will be necessary to recall a few simple mechanical principles. Let me illustrate one will stand for half a minute with one hand raised high above your head and the other hanging at your side, and will then bring your hands together for longer than you will probably find that one arm is now flushed in colour and is somewhat heavier than the other.

Second effect, what you have done is to demonstrate the highly important principle that blood, like water, tends to run down hill. Therefore, very startling about that, considering that blood is largely composed of water. But the principle is some rather remarkable sequences. It makes it absolutely incumbent on you, for example, when your brain is in an air case that is strong enough to resist air pressure and air pressure, as it is recalled, represents about 15 pounds, to the square inch.

Third effect, what you are to do is to raise your head above the level of the blood without causing the blood to flow out of it, just as you would out of your hand when you instead of being shut off altogether, the blood-flow is merely less within normal limits, you lose consciously in a less spectacular manner, and fall asleep. This is what would happen every time you raised your head above the general level of the body. If your brain were not enclosed in an air-tight skull. But for the presence of the skull, you would be obliged to lie down in order to keep it from overflowing.

Therefore, very startling about that, considering that blood is largely composed of water. But the principle is some rather remarkable sequences. Since 1872 a large number of skulls have been found in Peru, and Bolivia, showing that this surgical operation was frequently practiced.

side of it, and then the entire mental mechanism of the individual is menaced. The slightest interference with the normal conditions of pressure and equilibrium may be disastrous.

For example, a comparatively slight blow on the left temple may suffice to indent the skull case and cause a pressure in one of the particular part of the brain, known as the left temporal lobe. And in this event, the conditions of blood supply to a particular convolution of the brain called the speech centre may be so disturbed that the brain cells cannot work efficiently, and the individual may entirely forget the use of words, suffering from what is technically known as aphasia.

The injury may not be sufficient to cause the individual to lose consciousness, except temporarily, and he may be able to go about his ordinary business, but the ordinary way—with the very important modification that when he wishes to say anything he cannot recall the words. It may be even that it is only the brain cells having to do with spoken words that are affected, in which case the individual may be able to write what he wishes to say.

That sounds rather paradoxical, but physicians are familiar with such cases. The explanation is found in the fact that conditions of pressure in the brain cannot be modified without producing disturbance of brain functions. In another way of saying disturbance of mentality.

In another case, an injury to the skull may cause about undue pressure on the side of the head an inch or so above the ear. It chances that the centres of locomotion are located near the side of the skull, and thus afflicted will perhaps suffer paralysis of the muscles of his arm or leg.

On the side opposite the injury, the fibres that run down from the brain cortex to the various parts of the body are usually crossed, the right arm and leg being controlled by the left brain, and vice versa.

Fortunately it is possible for the surgeon in cases of such injury to cut a hole in the skull, elevate or remove the depressed part of the bone, and restore the normal conditions of pressure in the brain, so that the individual recovers the normal functions of speech or muscular action, as the case may be.

But there are other conditions of disturbed pressure in the brain case that are even more annoying than concussion of the skull, and which we recently have been supposed to be without remedy. I refer in particular to the injuries that may occur to the head of the infant during birth, in which there may be an actual rupture of some of the blood vessels at the base of the brain.

In this case there is no fracture of skull bones, hence the bones of the infant, as every one knows, are relatively flexible, and the skull case in infancy has not become a solid structure. You can test the latter point by feeling the pulse of your child with a finger placed at one of the openings of the skull, above the forehead, or at the occiput, which are technically known as fontanelles.

Precisely because the skull of the infant is not closed, and hence not subject to the same laws of pressure that must obtain after it becomes a solid structure, the symptoms of hemorrhage beneath the membranes of the child's brain may not at first be pronounced. Moreover, the fact that the infant is not expected to show much evidence of mentality during the first weeks of its life makes it difficult in any event to discriminate between normal conditions of mentality and conditions modified by brain pressure during the early weeks of the infant's existence. (Concluded next week)

COMMISSIONER RICHARDS

the pleasure it gave him to be present to address them. His subject was "The Church of God" and his first few words were in the form of a question, "What is the Church of God?" he asked. "Is it the bricks and mortar in which we worship?"

"No!" he continued; "it is a band of people gathered together to worship and serve God, and referring to the Salvation Army, he reminded his hearers that the Salvation Army was the Church of God, but before anything of value could be accomplished, it was necessary that God should become the central figure of all our doings. Clearly and definitely he pointed out that it was therefore necessary that a definite conversion should take place in the hearts of all individual members, and then an intense desire to work for God and do His will at all times would take possession; and it was only then that the Church could use "The Church in Zion" (The Salvation Army).

With an earnestness which was almost pathetic in its intensity, our Leader warned each Soldier and Officer against the danger of becoming formal, and thereby getting away from that class work which God has brought The Army into existence for; and then invited all to join in consecrating their lives to God's service, that a mighty revival might break out amongst God's own people and the sinner also.

It was a most inspiring sight to see the crowd of earnest, determined people stand to their feet, and in a song, which constituted a prayer, their determination to God to be more valiant in the fight against the extension of His Kingdom.—K.

MAJOR DESBRISAY

Conducts Holiness Meeting—Three at the Cross—Training College Singers Eager.

One good meeting always leads us to expect another, and so it was. Presence of God had been so evident at the opening Friday night Holiness meeting at the Parliament Street Corps, we looked forward with even greater hopes for the second—and we were not disappointed.

The meeting was conducted by Major Desbrisay, assisted by the Training College Staff and Cadets. During the meeting two selections were given by the Chester Singers, which were much enjoyed by the Training College Singers made their initial appearance. They sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "We believe that their singing from time to time, will be the means of bringing blessing to many hearts.

A number of young men, Egyptian Woolcott spoke regarding the blessing of Holiness, and gave definite testimonies as to its fulfillment in their own lives.

"The Major's talk on Moses' experience at the burning bush, supplied thought for all, and her message clearly explained the necessity and possibility of entire sanctification. There are scores of meetings we attend that are gradually forgotten, and they simply slip into the past as part of the great whole, but to at least three people the Holiness meeting at Parliament Street on Jan. 12th will stand out as a Bethel in their experience; for they definitely took a fresh stand for God, and made the full surrender to His will, and they were able to give testimony to the new experience found. The meeting was a gift to all of God's people, and some who came desiring new blessings and earnest seeking, then went away disappointed.

THE NEWS NOTES and COMMENTS

HUMANITY PAYS

UNDER the above heading, Sir Frederick Williams, Taylor & General Manager of the Bank of Montreal, writes in the Military Hospitals Commission "Bulletin" as follows:

The interests of our fighting men and the interests of our national finance are identical. Humanity pays in the long run—and often in the short run, too—with a nation as with an individual. It is perfectly clear that we need thoroughly organization and the keenest scientific care in dealing with the men already coming back disabled. Fortunately we have the Military Hospitals Commission carrying out this task, and it has already reached a rare degree of efficiency. The Canadian people should know more about this magnificent work that is being done in their name and for their interests; because its success must depend largely on the way it is backed up by well-formed public opinion.

THE COUNTRY'S BURDEN

SIR FREDERICK points out to restore every man to the highest efficiency he is able to attain, we should be adding to the country's burden in two ways, both of them very serious. One way is by increasing the pensions for disability. "Every removable disability that is not removed," he says, "therefore, lays an increased and unnecessary burden on the whole community, including all the soldiers themselves, besides being a particularly grievous injury to the soldier who is allowed to suffer from it. A still heavier burden would be laid on the country by the loss of these men's industry."

A hope that the finding or making employment for soldiers will be carried out with the same thoroughness of organization that has been pointed to fit them for employment. This is the business of every citizen who can either stimulate or in any way assist the provincial and other organizations formed for this purpose.

A GOOD PLAN

TO enable British doctors to enter the army, arrangements are being made to fill their places in home hospitals by Americans (says the London "Daily Telegraph"). There are hundreds of doctors of military rank from the United States who have joined the army, but hitherto they have been denied that honour owing to lack of substitutes.

A number of young doctors in the United States, according to the "Telegraph," have volunteered to serve in the British army, but could not receive a commission because they were not British practitioners. There is no barrier, however, to their practicing in Great Britain, and they are exactly the material required to fill the places of British doctors who desire to go to the front.

THE WORLD'S BIGGEST TELESCOPE

IT is due to the ability and energy of Dr. J. S. Plaskett, Chief Astronomer of the Dominion of Canada, that the first great telescope in the world is now located in the vicinity of Victoria, B. C.

It ranks in size as the world's largest telescope, and weighs fifty-five tons and rests on massive piers of reinforced concrete. The tube is thirty-one feet long and weighs twelve tons.

A curious mirror, which in this type of telescope takes the place of a lens in concentrating the rays of light, weighs two and one-half tons, measures seventy-three inches in diameter over all, twelve inches thick at the edges, and is pierced by a hole ten and one-half inches in diameter.

TORONTO STATISTICS

THE annual report of the Toronto Assessment Department shows that there are now 98,113 buildings in the city as compared with 97,136 in the year 1915, an increase of 977. The population of the city as returned by the assessors for 1916 is 465,526. For 1915 it was 463,705; a decrease of 3,179. This is explainable by the large number of enlistments.

AN HEROIC CAPTAIN

THE first soldier to win the Victoria Cross in the present war was Captain Grenfell, who was wounded in both legs and a hand at Andregies, Belgium on Aug. 24th, 1914, while saving the guns of the 19th Battery. He was invalided home, but returned to the front and was killed in action.

In his will Captain Grenfell left his decoration to the Ninth Lancers "to whom," he wrote, "the honour of my gaining the V.C. was entirely due, thanks to the splendid discipline of the British soldier who exist in this magnificent regiment."

FEED THE BIRDS

DO you ever give a thought to the birds during the cold weather? When everything is frozen up and snow covers the ground, it is very hard for birds to get enough to eat. A few crumbs thrown to them in the daytime, will be much appreciated by our feathered friends.

A writer in "Our Dumb Animals" thus tells how the birds during the winter, feed themselves. She says, "I buy a number of coconuts, cut off the end (like taking the top off an egg), put a string through it, knot it, and then hang the coconut from a tree limb. The birds at once will flock to eat the coconut, and when they have eaten enough away to make sitting room, will nestle there at night. Thus for a few cents food can be provided for many birds for months. In the most severe weather this food is always available, and one may remain away from home for several days and know the birds are provided for. To pass on this idea, that others who have the welfare of our little birds at heart may put up some other means to protect them."

BRITAIN IN THE SUDAN

IN spite of frequent reports the native population of the Sudan are on the point of rising against the British, they have proved themselves loyal than ever (says Herbert A. Gibbons in the "Century").

Mr. Gibbons describes, in connection of this opinion, a visit he paid to Omdurman, the capital of the Sudan, for the prophet's birthday. The host was Sir Reginald Wing Kitchener's successor of the Sudan. "When Sir Reginald explained to me what I was and what I was for," writes Mr. Gibbons, "he nodded his head with satisfaction and said, 'Tell him to go home, he sees,' they declared. 'We at that he came to our feast, for give London a good report of

ALASKAN DOGS USEFUL

WITH the return of heavy snow in the Voges, Alaskan teams to-day are vying with automobile drivers of America, and the members of the Norwegian Red Cross Ski Corps the honour of bringing in the greatest number of wounded.

The Alaskan sled dogs constitute the latest "war material" being shipped to the front. They are tough, the allies, through their premeditated mastery of the seas, are to gather war supplies in any part of the world. The Alaskan dogs are conceded the honour coming from the most distant point and even the greatest distances, which the allies have yet been obliged to draw.

The original number of sled dogs from the Voges front, numbered about 500. These were bred and multiplied so rapidly that France now has at her disposal a large number of sled dogs. Sleds and material necessary performing an incredible amount of transport service in the snow-covered altitudes of the Voges.

A LONG-NEEDED MOVE

THE war has brought home to British people the folly of all long large tracts of land to be simply as game preserves for the men, and the Government has issued an order making all such land available for agricultural purposes and the Board of Agriculture authorized to take the necessary steps to bring this land into use and compel it to help to Britain's millions.

The Christmas mail for the front has been larger than ever this year, and the Post Office has been dispatching parcels to the soldiers at the rate of a quarter of a million. The picture shows a few of them arriving at their destination at the front.

NEW AUTO SIGNAL

WHEN the automobile driver is about to stop or turn a corner, he has to use his hand or foot to warn the cars behind him of his intention. When he wants to stop or start at night, his warning is likely to be lost in darkness. A new glow has been put on the market which has a tiny electric bulb fastened to the back, with a light battery in the driver's foot. By closing his fingers in a "C" way the driver can close the circuit and light the bulb. The intended arm carries a clearly visible point of light for night driving.

Summary of Previous Chapters

The story opens with the introduction of two of the principal characters—George Stanton, an Englishman, and Joe Brown, an American. Both of whom are gunners in a British artillery battery stationed at Malta. The second chapter describes the arrival at Valletta, the capital of Malta, of the two characters, who are interested spectators. On their way home to barracks that night they heard a cry of alarm and saw a young Maltese man struggling in the arms of a soldier. They went to his rescue, and as Corporal Smith (who was the assailant) was threatening them for their interference, he was established by a Maltese man. Next day George visits a Maltese grocer in company with several other soldiers and discovers that the girl he rescued is the daughter of the proprietor. He does not make himself known, but resolves to call again soon and asks Joe to go with him. They are well received by the family and are invited to tea.

CHAPTER VII.

ANOTHER ENEMY APPEARS

PAOLO MICALFE earned a precarious livelihood by driving a carrozza for his customers. A carrozza, we might explain, is a light, four-wheeled, one-seated carriage, in which six people can sit, including the driver. A fixed canvas canopy protects passengers from the fierce rays of the sun, while a heavy waterproof curtain serves to keep them dry in rainy weather. As a rule, the carrozza men do not show the example of Jehu, who is noted for driving furiously. It is related that a British Jack Tar was accosted by a carrozza man once in the usual manner.

"No, Bill! I'm in a hurry," replied the officer as he passed on. "I need be, however, and extra money is forthcoming, the carrozza has no scruples in fashing his sty steed into a gallop. "The driver, then, was one of this family. And from early morning till late at night he scoured the roads round the two harbours for fares. The British and the Maltese hailed his horse at the back of their carriages, and the reader will have guessed by this time that he was a well-to-do individual. Indeed, he was, as making enquiries at the barracks about any soldiers going to hospital.

One afternoon, Paolo was fortunate in picking up two soldiers who were to be driven to Bitchirara. These made a good fare indeed. Here they dismissed him, and that they would take the carriage to the scene very little prospect of getting any business in the village. Paolo thought he might as well drive back to his best stand, which was in Sliema. As it would not be very much out of his way, he resolved to stop at Biancardi's to eat his final evening repast and indulge in a glass of birra.

He arrived there just as the family was concluding supper and being, of course, a privileged friend, was soon spied, however, by little Pietro Biancardi (the youngest boy), who called to him in a shrill voice. Then he stepped smilingly into the room and in the most suave and only manner, bade every one a good evening. Camilla, who knew that the poor fellow was deeply in love with her, and delighted to tease him, introduced him to George.

"This is the brave soldier who came to my help on the night of the "Vincenzo, do you value the honour of your sister?" asked Paolo, abruptly.

"The other sprang savagely to his feet. 'What do you mean?' he asked. 'Does any one threaten it? If so, my knife is ready!'

"She doesn't get excited now! I only want to put you on your guard. Tell me now, what do you think of that soldier who calls George coming here and saying such things to her, after such a short acquaintance?"

"I don't like it," said Vincenzo; "and if he utters any more such silly nonsense, I'll tell him so. If he ever insults Camilla and she appeals to me—Ah!" and he drew his hand across his throat significantly.

"I'm suspicious of every soldier, who comes fooling around with our Maltese girls," said Paolo. "These English seem to have an idea that all the women on this island are the same as those loose characters from Sicily, who are to be found in a certain quarter of Valletta. Watch out for that fellow George Vincenzo; and don't let him fascinate poor little Camilla with his fine talk."

By this time Vincenzo was calculating down a bit, and began to perceive that Paolo was speaking out of a jealous heart.

"I think Camilla is likely to do the fascinating," he said lightly. "Now, look here, Paolo, don't jump to conclusions too hastily. After all, you can't blame a man for wanting to say pretty things to a pretty girl, can you?"

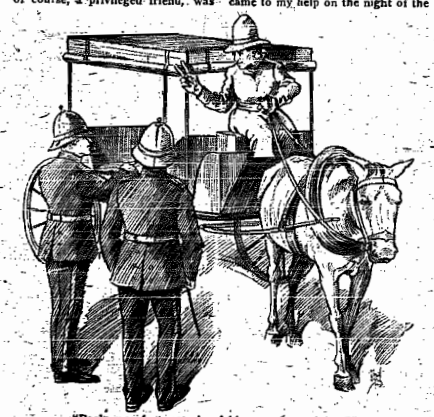

"But this man means mischief! I tell you I saw it in his eyes!" said Paolo.

"Vincenzo burst out laughing. 'Paolo, you're a jealous fool,' he said. 'Why, the man is as nice a soldier as ever I've met, and after all, you must admit that he showed himself a good-intentioned man when he intervened to save my sister from insult at the hands of one of his own countrymen. If he was as bad as you think he is, he would not have acted thus. Oh, no! drive your wickedness to the devil!'

But Paolo, who had been looking at Vincenzo's levity with very bad grace, and, turning moodily away, he commenced to eat his supper.

"I will not have to go to Penbrook to-morrow," he added. "And for that I am very glad, as a sergeant has engaged me to drive him all the way to Fort Desgemma, and back, and the horse would be too tired to make another journey right at once."

Old Giuseppe and the two soldiers now went into the shop; the younger children ran off to play, while Camilla and her mother busied themselves with domestic duties. Paolo was thus left alone, with Vincenzo, and they commenced talking together in their own languages.

"Paolo was fortunate in picking up two soldiers" about to walk right into the inner room without any formalities, when the sight of two strange soldiers sitting at the table made him pause on the threshold.

Just at that moment Camilla was speaking, but he caught only the latter part of what she said. "You'll like us much better the more you know us."

George's reply, "I am certain I shall like you, at any rate," made him grin his teeth with rage. Who was this insolent English soldier, and how was it that he was on such familiar terms with the family? How dare he speak to Camilla like that? Why didn't Vincenzo give him a sharp lesson, similar to the one he had given that other soldier in Valletta on the night of the carnival? These thoughts and many others passed through Paolo's mind as he stood listening on the threshold, partly hidden from the view of those in the room by a thick curtain which covered half the doorway. He was carried," she said. "Are you not proud to know him?"

"For your sake, yes," said Paolo, reluctantly taking George's proffered hand.

He then made enquiries about Smith, and when he learned that no trouble was likely to be stirred up over the stabbing affair, he expressed himself as very glad for Vincenzo's sake.

"I will not have to go to Penbrook to-morrow," he added. "And for that I am very glad, as a sergeant has engaged me to drive him all the way to Fort Desgemma, and back, and the horse would be too tired to make another journey right at once."

the business going in full swing. I was getting all the work that I could do, and being the only practical shoemaker in this town I soon built up a good business. But the old enemy who after me and Booze was all I wanted. It didn't matter how much I suffered, I could not leave it alone. I had been drinking pretty hard right up to about four weeks before. Previous to that I had been on a big jag for about two weeks.

It was on a Sunday morning when I began to realize that if I didn't soon alter my habits I was going to end up in a drunkard's grave. I still had the craving for more booze, but I could not get any. As I walked up Main Street that morning I felt ashamed of myself. I looked a perfect wreck. I couldn't raise any one. I was clean down and out; had no money, and had not got any food in the house.

I went back to my store about noon, and the sight that I saw began to touch my heart. There were beer bottles, whiskey bottles, and cigarette bottles all around. I began to think of home, and I said, "wonder what my mother would say if she could see me like this."

But Paolo, who had been looking at Vincenzo's levity with very bad grace, and, turning moodily away, he commenced to eat his supper.

the Indians of British Columbia and Alaska, was most interesting and convincing. The Commissioner took for the subject of his address St. Paul's declaration on the men of Athens, making particular reference to the inscription on one of the altars, "To the Unknown God." The long experience of the Commissioner in these various countries enabled him to illustrate and bring home to his hearers with power the truths he uttered.

TUESDAY

On Tuesday, Jan. 23rd, there was a record crowd, with quite a percentage of people who were not accustomed to attend Army meetings.

The Young People's Band was present; Bandmaster Irwin and the boys being glad of the privilege of supporting the Territorial Commander. They did well.

Brigadier Taylor was present, too, and was one of the other Officers of the Staff and Field. All were delighted that Mrs. Commissioner Sowton had sufficiently recovered to permit her being present, and on rising to speak, she received a warm welcome.

A number of Officers were called upon for a few words of testimony, among them being Mrs. Adjutant

WEDNESDAY

This was the last day of the Campaign under the leadership of Commissioner Sowton. In spite of the extremely cold weather, about seventy people attended an afternoon meeting.

The twelfth chapter of Romans was the portion of Scripture selected by the Commissioner. His lucid exposition of the Apostle Paul's instructions to the Romans shed around them new light and ended them with a deeper spiritual meaning.

The meeting at night was a bright and interesting one. Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton were both present and were supported by the Territorial Salvation Singers, who rendered several vocal selections.

Brigadier Taylor assisted. It is to be regretted, however, that Mrs. Brigadier Taylor was unable to be present, owing to illness.

Mrs. Commissioner Sowton's message was listened to with rapt attention. She took for her text, "My sheep hear My voice." Mrs. Adjutant Pugmire, and Ensign Carter testified to their personal experience of the saving Grace of God.

For a few words of testimony, among them being Mrs. Adjutant

PERSONALIA—Territorial

Brigadier Bettidge recently met the Young People's Workers of Toronto at the Scout Headquarters for the purpose of instructing them as to their duties. Eighty-two were present. It is planned to hold monthly meetings at all Divisional centres for Young People's Workers.

Brigadier Miller will accompany the Commissioner to Bermuda.

Mrs. Brigadier Atwell has been appointed Primary Instructor for the City of Toronto; and Mrs. Adjutant Gilbert has accepted similar responsibility in the West.

We are pleased to hear from Major Arnold, of New York, that his operations on Mrs. Arnold's personal knowledge of Eastern life, the congregation obtained a clearer conception of the circumstances related to it.

Major Moore will now be leaving New York for Bermuda on the "Dermodan," sailing Jan. 31st.

Heartily congratulations to Staff-Captain Cornish on his promotion to Major, and to Staff-Captain Young on his promotion to Major.

Adjutant Young was recently instructed in securing passage to England for a poor old lady, whose son is at the front. She has now reached her relatives, and writes to thank her for her gratitude for the Army's help.

REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

(Concluded on Page 12)

He drew numerous examples from the condition of the "penites." Six of the converts of the night before were present and testified to the fact that God had kept them well saved—
Praise God!

The Colonel's address was a drawing of comparison between the following: Vice, Infidelity, Lust, and God's wonderful love. The power and efficacy of God's power was to the heart with wonderful force, and six souls were found seeking Salvation.

On Tuesday night, Jan. 9th, at five o'clock, another lantern lecture was given for the children, and quite a number were present, despite the blizzard which was raging fierily.
The subject was mainly "The Life of the Late General Booth," and it was brimful of interest. Here and there the children volunteered for salvation, and some who were saved the night before testified to that effect.

At 8 p.m. the Colonel outlined the objects of the Movement called
"The Life-Saving Guards." Leaders, etc., have been secured, and a troop of Guards will soon be commenced in Regina. "Then the Colonel's ex-when the dauntlessness of Paul was
